ANTON ART CENTER ANNOUNCES NEW JURIED ALL-SCULPTURE EXHIBITION

Mount Clemens, Mich. - The Anton Art Center is pleased to host a new juried sculpture exhibition presented by the Sculptors Guild of Michigan called 'Past and Future: A Sculptural Look at Art', juried by Ray Katz.

The Sculptors Guild of Michigan was first known as the Terra Cotta Sculptors and founded by Svea Kline in 1952, who was known for developing the concept of a 'guiding light' in sculpture. The name of the group was changed again in 1968 to the Birmingham Sculptor Guild and then to its current name in 1986. At the time of its founding, the group supported women artists in the sculpture field. Men were encouraged to join the guild later in 1977.

The members of the Sculptors Guild of Michigan aim to create high quality three-dimensional art to submit for display and competitions, hold workshops to improve practice and learn new skills, enrich the community's appreciation of sculpture, and to provide a forum to connect with, inspire, and support each other.

"As a member of the Sculptors' Guild of Michigan, I benefit from a community that fosters shared dialogue, the exchange of techniques, and opportunities to exhibit and grow alongside other artists, such as the exhibition at the Anton Art Center," says artist Cat Orban. "In my work, I move between mediums that draw me to how they hold presence through weight, surface, and resistance. For example, the figure becomes a place where past and present meet, where experience is carried with vulnerability and strength, and form offers discovery in the moment."

The organizers share, "Sculpture carries the marks of time: hands guided by what came before and visions reaching toward what is yet to come. 'Past and Future' is an open call juried exhibition that invites artists to reflect on the space where past and future converge. Works may reflect sculptural form that speaks to memory, innovation, or the tension between them."

The Guild expects a diverse selection of sculptures in a variety of styles and mediums, including clay, stone, metal, glass, and mixed media. $425 in cash awards will be awarded to first, second, third, and honorable mention selections, as well as additional gift certificates sponsored by Runyan Pottery Supply Inc. and Starkweather Arts Center.

Jurying the competition is Ray Katz. Katz is a lifelong Detroit resident who earned a Bachelor of Sciences degree from Eastern Michigan University and a Master in Fine Arts degree in Sculpture from Wayne State University. Katz taught sculpture, drawing, and design at Oakland Community College for forty-eight years and creates artwork at his Pontiac studio. Katz is known for his large-scale metal sculpture, which he exhibits throughout the US and has also shown in Paris and Tokyo. Large public sculptures are on permanent display in New Jersey, Tennessee, and other private and public collections. Katz has served on the Board of Mid-South Sculpture Alliance and the Chicago Sculpture International and is currently on the Board of the International Sculpture Center.

Artists interested in submitting up to four artwork submissions of any medium for this competition may do so by the entry deadline on Monday, June 1, 2026, 11:59pm EST. Guild membership is not required to participate. An entry fee of $25 for members and $35 for non-members is required. Details can be found online at www.theartcenter.org/artist-opportunities.

All are invited to attend the public Opening Reception & Awards Announcement on Saturday, July 25 from 1pm to 3pm with light refreshments provided. All are welcome to come to enjoy the exhibition.

Admission is free to the Anton Art Center year-round and open to the public during gallery hours, Tuesday through Saturday from 10am to 5pm. The exhibit will be located on the First Floor of the Anton Art Center at 125 Macomb Place in Mount Clemens. Metered parking is available; free after 6pm and weekends.
